CHURCH COUNCIL IS FOR CENSORSHIP

CINCINNATI MAN ELECTED HEAD OF ORGANIZATION

Gambling In Franklin County Hit In Report of Law Enforcement Committee--Indecent Magazines were Also Given Attention--Women Are Placed On Equal Basis With Men In Amendment Adopted.

Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, was elected president of the Ohio Council of Churches at the closing session of that organization's annual meeting, Tuesday, at the Seneca hotel, Columbus. He was first vice president of the council.

Other officers selected were Dr. W. H. McMaster, president of Mt. Union college, Alliance, first vice president; Gardner Lattimer, second vice president and King Thompson, treasurer.

Members elected to fill vacancies on the executive committee were: Lieutenant Governor Charles H. Lewis, of Harpster; Mrs. Myra B. Scarlett, of Columbus; David W. Teachout of Cleveland and H. S. Firestone, Akron.

Recommendation of the motion picture committee that churches keep in closer contact with moving pictures exhibited, thru a subcommittee of Columbus men who would consult with the state censor board and view some films, was adopted. "This volunteer committee," said the report, "may well be considered a temporary expedient to be supplemented at some future time by a motion picture secretary, employed on either a full or part time basis as a member of the council's staff."

Further extension of county council work to take up overchurcing and other local problems was advocated by the county organization committee in its report. Increased localization of the councils' work thruout the state was seen by many of the delegates as marking a turning point in the state organization's work, which has been largely confined to the laying down of principles and formulation of a program.

Gambling in Franklin county was hit in the report of the law enforcement committee, which recommended that "churches should be ready to act decisively at the proper time." Indecent magazines, enforcement of prohibition and enforcement of Sunday observance were also covered in this committee's report.

A plea for elimination of overchurcing was made by Dr. C. L. Zorbaugh, president of the Presbyterian synod of Ohio, at the council's annual dinner at Central Methodist Episcopal church, Monday evening. Dr. F. I. Johnson, of Ohio Wesleyan university declared that natives of foreign countries are losing faith in the work of missionaries due to practices of business concerns operating from Christian countries. Greater cooperation among Protestant laymen was urged by Professor Clarence D. Laylin of Ohio State university. Gardner Lattimer quoted figures indicating that costs of welfare work were less than one-fourth of the national expenditures for tobacco, cosmetics, candy and chewing gum.

Women were placed on an equal basis with men in the council with the passage of a constitutional amendment, Monday, providing for one woman delegate in addition to one layman and clergyman from each county, and with the decision, Tuesday, to give women places on the committees, together with men.

Delegates to the department's meeting at the Seneca hotel, beginning Tuesday afternoon and continuing thru Wednesday, were selected this year from among representative church women of the state, including executives of city councils of churches. About 75 women are expected to attend the meetings, over which Mrs.

Dan F. Bradley of Cleveland, will preside.

Four Columbus women took part in the program. Mrs. W. H. Alexander spoke on public moral improvement and Miss Cecelia E. Slawik, secretary of the department, discussed overchurcing and underchurcing. Judge Florence Allen of the Ohio supreme court delivered an address at the women's department's dinner at Central M. E. church at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening. Mrs. Maclyar, Hamilton Lichliter conducted devotionals.

Other speakers scheduled for the women's meeting and their topics include: Mrs. McD. Howsare, Dayton, evangelism; Mrs. J. P. White, Cedarville, mission study books; Miss Blanche Carrier, Dayton, weekday religious education; Mrs. John Ferguson, New York, president of the Council of Women for Home Missions.

Southern Farmers in Washington for Ideas

Farmers from the vicinity of Salisbury, N. C., make a tour of inspection in their automobiles early each fall, securing information and ideas in farming from their brethren in neighboring states. Here is a group listening to a lecture by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Dunlap, who greeted them when they called at the Department of Agriculture in Washington.

SENATORS AND PIRATES TIED IN BASEBALL

Pittsburgh Earns Way Back Into Running by Splendid Pitching and Plays.

For the fourth time in the history of the baseball classic, the world series goes the limit of seven games. The Pittsburgh Pirates with Ray Kremer pitching, Tuesday vanquished Washington, 3 to 2, to even the count at three games each. Tuesday was the most thrilling contest of the six.

It was a great game that Kremer, the stalwart right hander hurled that afternoon. Holding the American league champions to six hits, he blanked them after the second inning, despite the fact that the Nat batters always were potential threats.

To whitewash Washington those last seven innings, Kremer had to use all his cunning and the last ounce of his mechanical skill. It is no swivel chair job to hold a powerful attacking team such as Washington in check, but Kremer, aided by the stone wall defense by his infielders, repulsed onslaught after onslaught, displaying his stamina right to the finish retiring Joe Judge and Ossie Bluege after Joe Harris had doubled with one out in the ninth.

Pittsburgh had another hero Tuesday in little Eddie Moore, its short and stocky second sacker. Just three years ago Eddie began his professional baseball career with St. Petersburg. A better outfielder than infielder, he broke into this series as the keystone guardian of the Pirates because Johnny Rawlings broke a leg just prior to the series.

Until Tuesday, Eddie had been almost a total loss as far as execution with the bat was concerned. But the youngster, only 21 years of age, asserted himself scoring Pittsburgh's first run in the third inning and smiting one of Alex Ferguson's offerings in the fifth for a home run that spelled victory as it cleared the temporary fence in front of the score board in left field.

VISITS OLD HOME.

Charles Sowder, of Ft. Wayne, Indiana, was in the city Tuesday. This was his first visit here in thirty years. He was a former bus and hack driver. Mr. Sowder is now employed as a stationary engineer by the Eckert Packing company at Ft. Wayne.

The business man takes his profit after everyone else is paid, and gosh, what a lot of people there are to pay.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From the Wires by Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

(United Press)

Columbus, O., Oct. 13 (UP). — The supreme court today sustained the motion to dismiss the petition in error of Earl Myers, Chillicothe, against the State of Ohio and the petition was dismissed.

Myers had been convicted of violating the Sunday closing law and had appealed his case, the higher court upholding the decision of the lower. He then filed a petition in error suit, followed by a motion to dismiss it.

Cleveland, —Postal inspectors may be called to investigate ghouls who have stripped souvenirs from the plane in which Charles H. Ames fell to his death at Bellefonte, Pennsylvania, 11 days ago, Howard B. Shaver assistant superintendent of the eastern air mail division announced here Tuesday.

"Even the name plate on the plane promised to Ames' parents in California was stolen," Shaver declared. "Unless the vandals return the property we will have postal inspectors investigate."

Cincinnati, —Suit of Attorney Elmer U. Grischy for $50,000 fee from Mrs. Helen Power Canter, St. Paul, opened Tuesday before a jury in common pleas court. Grischy claims fees in Mrs. Canter's recent suit to establish her status as common law wife of Emery K. Nowell, oil dealer, who died January 25, 1920. Mrs. Canter contends Grischy and his brother Oscar, forced her into the contract.

Cleveland, —F. S. Baston, manager of a restaurant here, is a psychologist. Baston hires only red hair waitresses. When asked why, he declared auburn haired damsels stimulate appetites, thereby increasing his profits.

Springfield, —The Ohio Welfare conference swung into its second day's session here Wednesday. The 1500 delegates heard John H. Clarke, former associate justice of the United States supreme court, plead for America to enter the world court. Clarke said Roosevelt and Taft had urged nations to form a world court and that President Harding and Coolidge both approved and urged America to take such a step.

France seems to have thought of every means of obtaining peace in Morocco except going home.

CHANGES IN THE CABINET OF PRESIDENT

Washington, Oct. 13, (UP). — One by one the members of the original Harding cabinet which President Coolidge inherited when he became president are passing out of the national picture.

Only three now remain, with the withdrawal of Secretary of War Hughes, Postmaster-General Will Hays, Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, Attorney-General Daugherty, Secretary of the Navy Denby and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who died last fall.

The others were Secretary of State Hughes, Postmaster-General Will Hays, Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, Attorney-General Daugherty, Secretary of the Navy Denby and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who died last fall.

PUMPKIN SHOW ARRANGEMENTS ASSUME SHAPE

Parades and Amusements Will be Features--Displays Bigger Than Ever.

At the joint meeting of the Pumpkin Show directors, and the members of the chamber of commerce held Tuesday evening, the reports of the directors of the Pumpkin show, showed that they were up and doing and everything is in apple pie order and the big show will be put on in time for the crowds that are expected here next week.

Aside from the displays, which will be unusual this year, there will be plenty of other free amusement for the visitors. Hoskins & Everett will put on balloon ascensions and parachute leaps twice daily. This will take place at the corner of Court and High streets. The high dive of seventy-five feet is another feature, which will take place twice daily at the court house.

The famous Brocks in their perilous horizontal bar acts, will be a feature of the show that will be put on twice daily at the corner of Main and Scioto streets.

The Flying La Pearls in their hair raising stunts on the trapeze twenty-five feet in the air, will be worth seeing. This attraction will be at the corner of Main and Pickaway.

The exhibit of live stock will be a revelation. The chairman of this section, John D. Hummel, has more entries than space, but he is providing extra space for all comers. This and the hog section goes to East High street.

Fred Nicholas, who is an authority on fancy work, says the room in the Crist block on North Court street, has been secured for the art department thru the kindness of the owner, W. E. Crist.

L. T. Shaner, who has charge of the chickens, reports that his section is coming along fine and the crowing will begin on time.

Earl W. Lutz, chairman of the baby show, is being overwhelmed by entries.

The Industrial parade will take place Thursday afternoon and Saturday morning.

Friday evening the Comic and Character parade will be put on.

Saturday afternoon will be given over to the family pet parade. This is a new feature and it is believed will be a big drawing card as a number of prizes will be awarded. The Yellow-bud band will furnish music for the opening night, Wednesday evening and the Adelphi band will furnish the music for the balance of the week.

CHICKEN THIEVES CAUGHT.

The poultry farm of W. A. Crites, just over the county line in Fairfield county, was visited by thieves Monday night and 100 White Wyandotte pullets were taken. The matter was reported to Sheriff Young, who with his deputies visited the place. Peculiar looking tracks of an automobile were traced to this city and led up to the home of Joe See, who, together with his son, Ben See, were placed under arrest. None of the chickens were found. The prisoners were turned over to the Fairfield county authorities Tuesday.

Bryan's Widow Has an Electric Horse on Hands

Miami, Fla.—A mechanical horse, purchased by the late William Jennings Bryan, is being held at the Bryan home here pending decision by Mrs. Bryan as to what disposition to make of the electrical mount.

Mrs. Bryan bought the contrivance from a New York firm after a visit to President Coolidge last July, when he was given a demonstration. It was delivered at the Bryan home after his death.

Mrs. Bryan plans to present it to some civic organization, it was said.

AUXILIARY MEETING

Despite the inclemency of the weather, last evening, the regular meeting of the auxiliary to the American Legion was held at the home of Mrs. B. T. Hedges, where those members who attend the meetings regularly, were present. Possibly being a patriotic organization the members reminded themselves of the hardships the soldiers had undergone and decided to brave the elements and do their duty by attending this meeting.

Quite an honor was conferred upon this chapter by the appointment of the president, Mrs. A. A. Parrett, as District chairman of Co-operation of the Central District. This announcement was made at the meeting last evening, and met with hearty congratulations from the members.

The district conference will be held in London on October 27, and Mrs. Parrett was appointed as delegate and Mrs. Amos Wilson as alternate. It is also hoped that some other members of the auxiliary will be able to attend this conference.

Mrs. Anne Betz, as secretary, read a letter from the committee in charge of the improvements made in the Post Room at Memorial Hall accepting the proposal made by the Auxiliary to have the carpet that now covers the floor, made into rugs, and also to paint the upper windows if the paint was furnished.

It was decided to give a series of card parties for the benefit of the Auxiliary, the first of which will be given the week of Oct. 25 at the residence of Mrs. Parrett. The exact date has not been decided upon but a called meeting some time soon will decide this matter and an announcement will be made as soon as possible.

A report from the local chapter of the American Red Cross was heard by the president at a meeting held in their rooms last Wednesday evening and she reported that those of the Auxiliary who wished to do so could knit sweaters as they were greatly in need of them. Several members agreed to make at least one sweater.

WHY BOYS LEAVE HOME

The telephone, the phonograph, the automobile and rural free delivery have done more to make farm life attractive than all the innovations of all the earlier centuries. And now the Agricultural Department reports that 550,000 farms in the United States are equipped with radio.

Yet only the incurable optimist will believe that the wireless can check the drift of country youth toward the city. The next census will show that it is still going on, as it has gone on before the census was dreamed of. The most promising panacea for what is actually a disease menacing the very life of civilization is the garden city idea, popularly identified with the plans of Henry Ford. It promises more than the most wonderful inventions because it offers to the farmer the one thing which most men and women crave most—opportunity for human contacts.—Boston Post.

—WE SAVE YOU MONEY—

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

OLD BOOKS HAVE NOT LOST CHARM

Although attics are quite passe in these days of space conservation, and such antiques as old sofas are only found in second-hand stores, the literature that flourished in the same period, especially that of interest to children, hasn't followed the same path of oblivion, says the Wisconsin Library Bulletin.

When dad and mother were boy and girl, and even when older brother and sister were young, several apples, a copy of "Tom Sawyer" or "Little Women," the old sofa in the attic and the rain pattering on the roof were all that was necessary for a pleasant afternoon. Or in summer, when dandelions needed to be picked, or the dishes washed, the loft in the barn, with "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" or "Nelly's Silver Mine," was a mighty attractive place. Youngsters haven't changed much today, for the books that were dear to the old folks in their childhood are just as much read now.

Central Europe Sorry
It Imported Muskrats

Recently hunters shot a muskrat near Salzburg, Austria. Other muskrats have been seen near Vienna. Before 1906 this North American animal was unknown in Europe, but during that year a pair was brought from America and released on an estate near Prague. The progeny of these rats multiplied so fast that they soon spread to the Bohemian lakes and forests in spite of efforts to exterminate them. By 1913 they were all along the Moldau and along the Elbe river in Bavaria. In 1914 they reached lower and upper Austria to the south and Saxony to the north. Soon they crossed the Danube but seem to have been stopped by the Austrian Alps. When the first muskrats were brought to Bohemia it was thought that they would furnish fur, but the climate of Europe does not seem to develop a suitable growth. Central Europe suffers the damage caused by the rodents without the compensation of being able to use the skins.

How It May Have Happened

"Halt, there! Dod-blast you, halt!" yelled Constable Sam T. Slackpitter, the faithful guardian of the peace and dignity of Putnia, "what the Sam Hill d'ye mean, rushing through the main street of our progressive little city like forty dogs after a cat?" "I didn't notice it, and—" returned the offending motorist. "Didn't notice it?" "No. I've got hay fever, and must have passed along Main street while I was sneezing."—Kansas City Star.

Peddling Pays

Two hundred and fifty of New York's East side street vendors who peddle via pushcarts, everything from shoe-laces to watermelons paid $5 a plate for the privilege of attending a testimonial dinner to members of their profession. The invitations were gold-inscribed, and the meal was of the best variety. Mrs. Molly Barasch, "queen of the peddlers," wore her diamond diadem and a white lace dress.

Many English Prisons Sold

More than twenty prisons in England have been entirely closed since 1914 and the 40 remaining in use are only partly filled at any time. The total prison population today in England is less than 60,000 against 167,000 ten years ago. Prisons that are no longer needed are being sold by the prison commission.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Boggs entertained their dinner club Tuesday evening.

Mrs. H. P. Folsom entertained at the Maramor, Columbus, Tuesday in honor of Mrs. Thomas Cooper, of San Francisco, the guest of Miss Sadie Brunner. Covers were laid for the honoree and Miss Sadie Brunner, Miss Grace Moodie and the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Chadwick celebrated their forty-second wedding anniversary quietly at their home, corner Watt and Pickaway street. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Manley and children; William, Louis, and Lucy Alene, of Akron, who came down to assist in the celebration.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Harble, of Darbyville, were tendered a very pleasant surprise at their home last Friday evening by several members of his congregation. It was planned by Mrs. G. W. Miller, Mrs. F. E. Ginder and Mrs. Harry Hott and daughter, Jennie. As the minister is a very busy and active man, it kept Mrs. Miller very busy herself keeping track of him to ascertain just where he would be found, but he finally returned home, and at about 5:30 was very much surprised to see quite a number of callers about to enter. Mrs. John Downs happened to know of his fondness for angel food cake and baked one of her famous ones especially for the occasion. They also received quite a nice donation of other things. A lovely supper was also served by the ladies and a very social, pleasant evening was enjoyed with the minister and his estimable wife. The following guests were present; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Beatty, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hill and daughter, Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl E. Smith, Mrs. F. E. Ginder, Violet and Howard, Miss Sarah White, Mrs. Harry Hott and daughters, Jennie, Elizabeth, Doris and Bernice and little son, Harry Ed., Mrs. John Downs and Lois Beatty.

The members of Car N, of the Blue Train that left Columbus in July for a trip to the northwest and California, held a reunion at the beautiful country home of Mrs. J. C. Peters and son, Joseph, eight miles northeast of Circleville, on Sunday. Before separating, after having the delightful trip. Mrs. Peters invited the members of this car to meet at her home in October for a dinner and reunion. Sunday, October 11, was finally designated and the following persons were there to enjoy a most delightful time: Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Craig and Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Crawford, of Massillon; Mr. and Mrs. Otto Ackerman, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Vorhes and daughters, Clara and Alma, Miss Ruth Hood, Mrs. Converse and Ed Dozier, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. B. Colwell and Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Rife, of Circleville; Miss Mary E. Babb, of Wilmington; Dr. and Mrs. D. H. Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lewis, Edward Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Cadwallader, of Washington C. H. The day was delightfully spent at the beautiful Peters home. They will meet next year at Washington C. H.—Record Republican.

First Graduate Nurse

Modern nursing's span is so short that America's first woman graduate nurse still lives. She is Linda Richards of Roxbury, Mass., now over eighty years old. According to Miss Anna C. Maxwell, one of her pupils and perhaps the dean of New York nurses, Linda Richards was a woman of thorough education, great strength of character and wonderful perseverance. She was tall, dark, stately and forceful. Her personality was impressive and she had a great vision of what nursing might be. It was she who set out to fix its standards in a foundation of intelligence, education and dignity. Her school of nurses was at the Boston City hospital.

Greenland Hygiene

Tuberculosis is reported to be "making serious ravages among the natives of Greenland, where the knowledge of the principles of hygiene is primitive," says the United States Department of Labor. The Danish ministry of the interior and Danish health service are assisting the local government in the installation of a 20-bed hospital for tuberculous children. Measures for the protection of orphans in Greenland are also being undertaken.

Jugoslavia to Broadcast

Zagreb, Jugoslavia, where there are 145 wireless receiving sets, is to have a broadcasting station that will be used by the state only, but efforts are being made to have it open for programs and other general purposes.

Siam's Highways

Improvements in the railroads and motor highways of Siam are expected to bring great prosperity by getting to the markets the products of fields, mines and forests that heretofore have been inaccessible.

Pump Gives Gasoline;
Garage Finds Out Why

Robinson, Ind.—Citizens of this city thought they had struck a real bonanza here when a visitor to the town pump discovered that the erstwhile reliable well was producing no water, but gasoline.

Excitement reigned when the discovery became known and several autoists filled their tanks free of charge. They found the motor fuel as good as that obtained at a filling station. Later a nearby garage, which thought it had plenty of gasoline on hand, found its storage tank empty. The tank had sprung a leak and 500 gallons of gasoline had followed a crevice in the earth to the town well.

Mummified Woman Is
Puzzle to Italians

Naples.—A striking example of the mummification of a human body by natural processes has been discovered at Vatolla, in the province of Salerno, with the exhumation of the body of a local resident, Rosa Scarpa, who died in 1912. The body was found to be in a perfect state of preservation; even her clothing were in a sort of petrified condition, but retained their original colors.

Thinking the mummification process might have been due to peculiar chemical qualities of the soil, the authorities ordered the opening of an adjacent grave, but the corpse in the latter grave had completely decomposed. This, therefore, led to the belief among devout natives that a miracle had been wrought.

A Daring Departure in 1921

.. today, the nation's standard for small home heating

"BEAUTIFUL, yes, but will it work?" Many questions, like this one, greeted the Heatrola in 1921. It was so different in appearance and operation from anything known before.

But Heatrola "worked!" From the day of the first installation, its success was assured. For Heatrola, handsome as a fine mahogany cabinet, and as easy to keep clean, does the work of a basement furnace! It keeps every room in the house, upstairs and down, cozy and snug in coldest weather. And requires no more fuel than any stove requires.

Tens of thousands of homes enjoyed Heatrola's furnace comfort last Winter—many thousands more will own Heatrolas before snow flies. Right here in this community, the homes of many of your neighbors are kept warm by this modern heating method. Let us show you these Heatrolas, and tell you how easily you can own one, too. THE WIFE THAT FAILED

There is in Paris a disappointed husband. What distinguishes him from others is that he does not mind who knows it. He has gone to the courts to extract from his parents-in-law compensation for "having deceived him as to the qualities of his wife." Such things, of course, have been. The leading case, is that of Laban and Jacob, who, poor man, was so far deceived as the qualities of his bride that he was married to the elder sister instead of the younger.

The Victorian poet assures us that this is the common lot of man: "With Rachel we lie down at evening, behold in the morning 'tis Leah," or, as the vernacular has it, "no man marries the woman he wants." But in America it is generally thought that this is one of the inevitable risks of life.

The resources of American law have seldom been invoked on the direct issue that a wife is not what she was expected to be. It would seem that the French system contains no special provisions for such cases, for the suit is described as without precedent, and the husband appears to rely upon general principles, such as a breach of warranty and false pretenses by the parents, rather than any particular article of the code.

He pleads that before his marriage his wife was no better than she should have been, that her parents not merely knew this, but connived at it, encouraged it, and never said a word to him about it. This is a state of things often met in old plays and novels, but it may be said that it goes better as a tragedy than as a case for damage. Not unknown to dramatists either, is the theme of a wife falsely accused of misconduct before the wedding day. It would clearly be wrong to offer any opinion as to which of these classes includes the lady in Paris.

But the husband has other grounds of complaint. "Contrary to the information given to him before marriage," he pleads, "the family into which he married contains some most undesirable characters." What family does not? But what would the man have? Will he require that a wife shall bring him relations-in-law whom we will love, like, or even approve? It is preposterous. Even in marriage a man has no right to expect miracles. But this persistent fellow argues that he had known in his bachelorhood what he knows now he would never have married the girl, and if he had not married her he would have saved a lot of money. This money, therefore, he requires from her parents. It is a safe bet that he will not get it. But he is an interesting man. He ought not to be in the courts. He ought to be in a museum.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank all our relatives and friends for the kindness and sympathy extended us at the death of our dear wife and mother, also for the beautiful floral tributes. We thank Rev. Johnson for his consoling words and the Albaugh Co., for their services.

IN MEMORIAM

Editor Union-Herald:—Waneta Faith, daughter of Grant and Bertha Shade, was born near Darbyville, April 5, 1906, and departed from this life October 10, 1925, aged 19 years, six months and five days.

She leaves to mourn father, mother four sisters and two brothers and a host of other relatives and friends. She was converted and joined the M. E. church at Darbyville in February, 1919, under the pastorate of Rev. Warren Davis. In July she was taken sick and for fourteen weeks she had suffered untold agony until relieved by the grim messenger of death.

Waneta was a kind and loving daughter, ever thoughtful and ready to relieve mother in the household duties, and was loyal to her friends. She was a lover of beautiful flowers and was always pleased to receive them from her friends during her illness.

Waneta is gone, left us in the springtime of her youth, never to return; but what a blessed thought for us that sometime we can meet her in another home where pain and suffering are unknown.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our sincere gratitude and thanks to the kind neighbors and friends who in any way assisted us during the sickness and death of our loved one. Also to Rev. Harble for his consoling words, the choir for their beautiful songs rendered, to C. E. Hill, the undertaker, for his courteous ways and efficient manner in which he conducted the funeral and to Dr. E. A. Secoy and Dr. F. E. Ginder for medical attention and treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Shade And Family.

FLOCK RECORDS WILL BE KEPT FOR ONE YEAR

Forty Women Have Signed Agreements—Accounts of Egg Production.

Forty Pickaway county farm women have signed agreements to keep Poultry Demonstration flock records for the fiscal year beginning November 1, 1925, and ending November 1, 1926.

These records will contain detailed accounts of egg production, receipts from all sources of the poultry work, and all expenditures for feed, equipment etc.

A complete inventory at the beginning and end of the year will be taken. Record blanks are furnished in triplicate for monthly reports to the county agent. Each woman cooperating by keeping these records will be visited by the poultry specialist from the university at least once during the year. A monthly summary for the past month will be sent to each co-operator, the first of each month. This will give the standing in egg production of all co-operators but only the names of the highest ten will be printed.

Three county meetings will be held. The demonstrators will meet Friday afternoon, October 16, at the Farm Bureau office to get the proper information for starting the work.

Raymond E. Gray, poultry specialist, Ohio, State university will be the speaker of the afternoon. Mr. Gray will talk on the fall management of the laying flock and demonstration flock record keeping.

Dare Devils Risking Lives Daily Often Claimed In Minor Mishaps

Do some persons lead charmed lives, risking their necks at every turn yet going unscathed? Are others, no matter how uneventful their lives, doomed to meet one sudden experience that will abruptly end time for them? It would seem so from a casual study of death records and the histories of cases.

A human fly, who could never procure insurance because he made his living scaling skyscrapers before moving crowds, dies in his bed of pneumonia. A middle-aged farmer, pursuing the most peaceful occupation in the world, is shot to death while being shaved in the village barber shop.

Two devil drivers of high-powered racing cars beat death in half second escapes time after time. A conservative doctor, whose office is given mostly to office practice, tripping on a rug, falls against a high voltage wire of his X-ray apparatus and is instantly killed.

These are but a few of the accidents that cost the Prudential Insurance Company more than a million dollars last year. Persons in the so-called hazardous occupations such as aviators, steeple jacks, miners, workers in plants making explosives and some others cannot procure insurance. In the case of other occupations the clause providing double indemnity in case of accidental death can not be included.

Yet last year accidental death benefits paid by the Prudential amounted to $554,648. This sum was in addition to the face values of the policies so that the total amount paid by the company on accidental deaths of ordinary policyholders reached $1,109,256. Approximately fifty per cent of all accidental deaths were between the ages of twenty and forty years of age, rendering them untimely as well as violent.

Short-Cuts in Cake-Baking

THERE are many ways in which the busy housewife can simplify and minimize the burdens of her day. All household tasks are important, and most of them necessary, but numerous valuable aids are at the housewife's beck and call, if she will but avail herself of them. In cooking, for instance, so much time is necessarily consumed in the preparation of the substantial parts of a meal, that there is little time or strength left for the supplementary parts, such as salads and desserts. Yet these need not be a burden.

Cake-baking, for example, used to be a rather burdensome undertaking and often to the weary housewife seemed to be the "one straw" too much after a busy day of cleaning, or ironing, or cooking the substantial dishes of the three meals. But, now that so many of the things which go into the making of a cake may be had in prepared form, ready to use at a moment's notice, no one minds beating up a cake in mid-afternoon, to be served as dessert for dinner, or for five o'clock tea when unexpected guests drop in.

If the larder happens to be short of milk, there is no need to send out for it, if the housewife is one of those wise ones who keep an adequate and varied stock of prepared foods, including powdered or evaporated milk, on her pantry shelf. Powdered milk is carefully inspected and pasteurized milk which has then been dehydrated (water removed). It requires merely the replacing of the water, to produce milk in its regular and familiar form. When used in cake, it will make the latter much more healthful for children or invalids to eat, because the pasteurization removed all disease-causing bacteria, and, once the water was removed, bacterial development stopped.

The rule for restoring powdered milk to liquid whole milk is as follows: 1 cup of water to 4 tablespoons or 1/4 measuring-cup of the powder.

A good, standard cake may be made by creaming together 1/2 cup butter and 1 cup sugar; adding beaten yolks of 3 eggs; sifting 1 cup flour with 3 teaspoons baking-powder, and stirring these in alternately with 1/2 cup of reliquidated powdered milk. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla, and fold in the egg whites beaten very stiff. Bake in moderate oven, in layer or loaf-cake tin. Or, evaporated milk may be used. This, also, is pure whole milk from which a large part of the water has been removed and which has been processed in such a way as to retain its purity. It needs only to be diluted with an equal part of water to have a milk equal in richness to fluid milk of standard quality.

The powdered milk may be used to make a good chocolate fudge frosting, thus: 1 1/2 cups brown sugar, 2 tablespoons syrup, 1 tablespoon butter, 1/2 cup reliquidated powdered milk, 1 square chocolate. Cook slowly for fifteen minutes, or until it forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water. Cool for ten minutes and beat until creamy.

Whipped cream may be made from evaporated milk and poured over a plain cake. This is done by cooking the milk in a double-boiler for five minutes, stirring constantly; then cool (also stirring), and set on ice until ready for whipping. Canned pineapple may be used in either the filling, or in the cake, itself. Coconut, moist or dry, comes ready to mix with boiled icing, or to use in the cake batter itself. A ready-made marshmallow filling also comes in cans.

ELK'S PEAK PUT ON MAP BY BOY SCOUTS

The map of the United States is to have an addition. Elk's peak, near Portland, Ore., is to be the new feature. It has gained official notice through the suggestion and interest of boy scouts of Sellwood, Ore.

Troop 46 visited the peak last year while on an historical hike. The scouts, on their return, started their efforts to have the peak named. The troop brought the landmark to the attention of the National Geographic board.

The result has been the naming of Elk's peak, which will hereafter appear on all official maps of the country.

"The site, it is declared by old timers, was the habitat of hundreds of elk who roamed through the Willamette valley," stated a news account. "In fact, even after the district became settled, the elk were seen about the slopes of the peak."

Wasn't in the Curriculum

A knowledge of pedagogy does not always beget a knowledge of the finer aspects of horticulture or agriculture. For instance, the teacher in one of the junior high schools of a northern Indiana city had occasion to visit with her father the little garden the parent had planted in the rear of the factory where he was superintendent.

"Daddy, dear," she said in the tone characteristic of girls who have passed the teen age, "do the cabbages grow on top of the ground or underneath the ground?"

Men may be practical creatures, but you seldom hear of one marrying to get a home.

GREELEY'S HANDWRITING AGAIN.

Horace Greeley's illegible handwriting has become a tradition of the country. It is amusingly demonstrated in two letters quoted in the October McClure's magazine.

The first letter is this:

"Tribune Office, New York City: May 2, 1869.

"Dear Sir: I am overworked and growing old. I shall be sixty next February 3. On the whole, it seems I must decline to lecture henceforth except in this immediate vicinity, if I do at all. I cannot promise to visit Illinois on that errand, certainly not now. Yours truly,

"Horace Greeley."

The reply to this letter was this:

"Sandwich, Ill., May 12, 1869.

"Hon. Horace Greeley, "New York Tribune

"Dear Sir: Your acceptance to lecture before our association next winter came to hand this morning. Your penmanship not being the plainest, it took some time to translate it; but we succeeded and would say, your time, February 3, and the terms, sixty dollars, are entirely satisfactory. As you suggest, we may be able to get you other engagements. Respectfully M. B. castle."

AMUSEMENTS

A Homespun comedy-romance, cleverly acted, skillfully directed and with the added advantage of a plot that is different, "Old Home Week" Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture, now showing at the Metropolitan theater is about as satisfying and entertaining a photoplay as the current season has produced.

Here is a picture that portrays the sunny side of Main street and does it in such human and humorous fashion that the memory of it will linger long after other photoplays have been forgotten.

Altho the star's performance is the outstanding feature, he is ably supported by an exceptional line-up of experienced players, headed by Lila Lee, who acquit themselves with considerable distinction.

"Old Home Week" boasts the authorship of George Ade, and if there is a writer in America today who knows the average small town and can write about it amusingly, sympathetically and understandingly, it is this famous Hoosier humorist, whose shrewd philosophy and homely quips have won for him an enviable reputation.

In brief, the story deals with the experiences of a small town boy, who returns home after having "made good" in New York. At least the townspeople take it for granted that he has been successful inasmuch as his business cards read "President of the Amalgamated Oil Co.," The citizens hail his arrival with the keenest delight because the town is at that very moment in the midst of an oil boom.

At about the time the local "here" discovers that a couple of crooked promoters are in back of the oil boom the inhabitants learn that their native son is in reality a failure and bankrupt. The resultant developments are full of action and suspense eventually leading up to a surprise climax and a happy ending.

The production as a whole reflects great credit on Tom Geraghty who made the screen adaptation and Victor Heerman who produced it.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

NEOLITHIC MAN HAD NUMEROUS COMFORTS

Had About the Same Plants and Animals That We Have.

When we read over the list of the plants and animals domesticated by Neolithic man, we are astonished to find that there have been very few additions since that time in either of these classes. Down to the discovery of the New World no domesticated animals of importance and few plants had been added in the 6,000 or 8,000 years since the lake villages of Switzerland were constructed. Flax was the commonest known textile and was used in the manufacture of skin garments. Wool was also used; in fact, it was the chief dress material used down through the classic into medieval times. Linen was much later in North and came into use there in relatively recent times, while silk first appeared in Europe during the Roman Empire.

CLARK COUNTY GRAND JURY

Investigating Mysterious Poisoning Case.

Springfield, Oct. 13.—(UP.)—The Clark county grand jury met today to investigate the mysterious poisoning of 14 year old Esta Strome, of New Carlisle, whose stepmother, Mrs. Birdie Strome, is held in the county jail pending action of the grand jury.

Threads of evidence spun from the story told by Arthur Keigley, Dayton, O., drug clerk, will weave a charge of murder that may be placed against Mrs. Strome, County Prosecutor McKinney declared.

Keigley will testify that a woman answering Mrs. Strome's description bought a quantity of strychnine shortly before the girl died.

An analysis of Esta's stomach revealed she died of strychnine poisoning. She was in apparently good health 30 minutes before she collapsed.

WEDDING OCCURRED FRIDAY EVENING

A beautiful home wedding was solemnized Friday evening, October 9th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Martin, west of the city, when their daughter, Cecile Edna, was united in marriage to Russell C. Palm, of Circleville.

Thirty-five guests witnessed the impressive ring ceremony, which was performed before a bank of ferns and potted plants, by Rev. Kilpatrick of Amanda.

The attendants were Mr. Russell Martin and Miss Mae Martin, brother and sister of the bride.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Palm will reside near Circleville.—Lancaster Eagle.

Plan Ideal Marriages

Latest of the additions to Berlin's myriad clubs and vereins is the Bachelor club. The members pledge themselves not to marry until they have amassed a capital of 100,000 marks (nominally $23,800) and then to marry none but poor girls. The club members believe that the root of the social unrest is misery and that most marriage that fall are shipwrecked on indigence. Therefore, they believe the ideal marriage demands a comfortably situated husband and a girl he loves.

Instead of having psychological tests of persistent speeders, who take their daily toll of human life, to determine their fitness to drive a car, would it not be just as well to have psychological tests of public officials and jurors to determine why they feel that the stealing of a diamond ring from a shop window is more serious than the crushing out of the life of a child?—New York Evening World.

COMMITTEE SAYS HANDS ARE TIED

The Uniform Rule Blocks Tax Relief.

INTANGIBLES ESCAPE LEVY
Burden on Real Property Can Be Decreased Only by Adoption of the Tax Amendment.

Columbus, O.—Because of the present inflexible constitutional requirement that all classes of property shall be taxed by a uniform rule, viz., at their true value in money and at the same rate, every legislative attempt to force intangible property onto the tax duplicate has proved abortive. Money on deposit in financial institutions is one of the several kinds of intangible property and the most easily disclosed. If all the money on deposit in Ohio were taxed so that it would bear a fair share of the burden, greater equity in our tax system would be attained and considerable increase in revenue should result. A tax which drives money out of the State or into concealment, because the rate is regarded as confiscatory, is unenforceable and futile.

Part of the work of the Joint Legislative Committee on Economy and Taxation has been to ascertain the amount of money on deposit and how much of it has been taxed, under the uniform rule. The figures collected by the Committee show that in the year 1924, while there were more than three and a half billion of dollars on deposit, less than a quarter of billion was taxed. Read the figures showing money on deposit and money actually returned for taxation according to counties:

It has been estimated that all intangible property in Ohio escaping taxation amounts to more than Ten Billion of Dollars. The grand total of all property returned for taxation in 1924, including land and improvements and all tangible and intangible personal property was about Twelve Billion. Two Hundred and Fifty Million Dollars. If the intangible property now escaping taxation under the present uniform rule were taxed at a rate proportionately fair to its earning power, it would seem reasonable to believe that there could be a lightening of the tax load now borne by real and personal property.

In the submission of the proposed tax amendment to the Constitution, and the creation of this joint committee, the Eighty-sixth General Assembly has responded to definite sentiment in the State. No General Assembly can legislate substantial improvements in our tax system and this joint committee cannot effectively complete its work, unless the people adopt the tax amendments at the election November 3.

Every citizen has a self-interest in the question of taxation, whether he be owner or renter.

Nation Honors Dead

Honor to the dead in the form of monuments of carved stone is well carried out in the United States. Last year more than 400,000 tons of stone were used in building monuments to the dead and for gravestones. Some of the monuments represented work by accomplished sculptors, while many were the work of ordinary stone cutters.

A Mistake in Identity

In the town where I was reared there was a cabitation barroom and luncheon for colored only, known as the Bleeding Heart saloon. It stood at the foot of a street near the head of the wharf and was a favorite resort for river jakes. Among its regular patrons was a brawny individual, six feet four inches long and correspondingly broad, who answered to the pet name of Red Hoss. Red Hoss posed as a bad man. He let on, as the phrase runs, that he was the undertaker's best friend. To be sure there was no record that he actually had ever destroyed anyone, but he frequently promised to do so, and was rated as dangerous by the resident colored populace.

One night the Cincinnati and New Orleans packet on her way south landed at our town. Among her deck passengers was a small yellow man, a professional prize fighter from up North. On the journey down the river he had introduced his own private set of educated ivories into the crap game among the roustabouts, with the result that he now had all their money in his possession.

Dapper, trim and slim, he climbed the wharf and entered the Bleeding Heart and called for a jolt of sloe gin. He was in the act of paying for the drink with the top film of a delectable fat roll of green bills when the swinging doors were thrust violently asunder and in stalked Red Hoss, slightly intoxicated and therefore doubly belligerent. His lowering, bloodshot eye swept the interior, then focused with a greedy stare upon what the slender stranger held in his hand.

Lurching slightly, he swagged up to the bar and gripped a huge soiled paw on the lapel of the little yellow man's coat.

"Say lissun, pusson," he stated. "You better turn dat bundle of sof' money over to me, an' 'en I'll give you back whut part of it I thinks you should have fur yosef."

"Who is you, may I ast?" inquired the visiting nobleman in gentle accents.

"You better ast!" growled Red Hoss. "Findin' out who I is meks yo' chances fur livin' longer all de brighter ef you asts me to stay round dese parts. You asts me who I is, huh? Well, I se goin' tell you. I se de new town bully, that's who! Yas, suh; I se de official bully of dis town an' w'en a strange nigger hits yere he mos' gin'elly hands me over whut spare change he's got an' that's his ins'nohence. So—"

He did not finish the sentence. Stupefaction and rage tied his tongue temporarily as the audacious strippling with a jaunty gesture brushed free of the detaining clutch and turned to the barkeeper, saying pleasantly:

"Mist' Barkeeper, 'at shorely wuz very tasty gin. I thinks I'll tek me one mo' slug outen de same bottle, ef you please."

Red Hoss recovered his faculties. With a berserker bellow he swung with a huge fist for the little man's jaw. The jaw was not there when the fist whizzed past. The pugilist ducked, and came up expertly with a short arm jab which landed exactly on the point of Red Hoss' chin. There was a jar as a large inert body struck the floor.

Three minutes later Red Hoss slowly and dizzily roused himself. Some Good Samaritan had restored him to consciousness by sluicing a bucket of water over him. Dripping and dazed, he sat up, holding his aching head on with both hands. The little man stood at the bar blowing softly upon the knuckles of his right hand and conversing with the barkeeper upon the topics of the day.

"Mister," quavered Red Hoss, "who is you?"

"Me?" said the stranger. "Oh, I is merely the pusson you thought you wuz w'en you come in yere."

A Service to the Whole Land

In the early summer of 1918 three of us made a long trip by automobile to pay a visit to a colored regiment at the front in France. The results more than repaid us for the time and trouble. One of the main compensations was First Class Private Cooksey, who, because he had been an elevator attendant in a Harlem apartment house, gave his occupation in his enlistment blank as "indoor chauffeur." It was to First Class Private Cooksey that the colonel of the regiment, seeing the expression on the others' faces when a minenwerfer from a German mortar fell near by on the day the command moved up to the front, and made a hole in the earth deep enough and wide enough and long enough to hide the average smoke house in—it was, I repeat, to First Class Private Cooksey that the colonel put this question:

"Cooksey, if one of those things drops right here alongside of us and goes off, are you going to stay by me?" "Kurnel," stated Cooksey with sincerity, "I ain't aimin' to tell you no lie. Ef one of them things busts clost to me, I'll jest natchelly be obliged to go away from here. But please, suh, don't you set me down as no deserter. Jest put it in de book as 'Absent without leave,' 'cause I'll be back jest ez soon ez I kin git my brakes to work."

"But what if the enemy suddenly appears in force without any preliminary bombardment?" pressed the colonel. "What do you think you and the rest of the boys will do then?"

"Kurnel," said Cooksey, earnestly, "we may not stick by you, but we'll shore render one service, anyway; we'll spread the news all over France 'at th' Germans is comin'!"

PREFERS PRISON

In United States To Freedom In Mexico.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—John W. Worthington, "Wolf of La Salle Street," who returned to Chicago from Mexico, "to make peace with my God and my government, to make my will, and to die," was taken to the Atlanta Penitentiary Saturday expecting to live at least five years.

"The Wolf," who had dodged the penitentiary through subterfuge for two years—made a last desperate stand for continued freedom here and when that failed, started for prison with a resignation not unmixed with happiness.

"Wtll, I'm glad to be on my way," he said after regaling reporters with his hardships while a fugitive in Mexico. "The doctor down in Mexico said I might live five years if I returned to the United States. I'll have good care in prison and any way, I'd rather be in prison in the United States than free in Mexico."

Heat with Distinction

At last it is proved that a home heater can be good looking—ornamental, if you will—as well as a practical heat-producing utility.

The Mueller Furnacette marks the greatest advance in home heating equipment since the invention of the heating stove. It is the joint creation of master furniture designers and skilled heating engineers. There is distinction in every line of its well-balanced, walnut-grained, vitreous enamel cabinet.

And as for heat—never was there an above-floor heater of any kind that could compare with the Furnacette in heating efficiency! It heats the whole house by continuously re-circulating warm, moist air thru all the rooms. It provides more comfortable, more uniform heat than two or three stoves combined, yet uses no more fuel than an ordinary heating stove.

LOANS up to $500

If you borrow a dish-pan from your neighbor, and have to pay it back by loaning him your car the price comes high. Yet some people expect the redemption of a favor in just about that proportion. An accommodation loan from a friend or relative usually costs plenty in one form or another and in addition to the cost, if the incident should become the subject of family or neighborhood discussion, it is embarrassing, to say the least. An element of personal accommodation enters into every City Loan transaction, but fundamentally it is a business proposition. The borrower knows the full cost before he starts, also that a credit once established can be used time and again as desired.

HARTMAN THEATER.

"The Rivals," the immortal comedy by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, with an all star cast, comes to the Hartman theater, Columbus, for a return engagement of three days beginning on Thursday, October 15, with a matinee on Saturday.

The cast includes Mrs. Fiske as Mrs. Malaprop, Chauncey Olcott as Sir Lucius O'Trigger, Thomas A. Wise as Sir Anthony Absolute, James T. Powers as Bob Acres, Lotus Robb as Lydia Languish, Jean Ford as Julia Marie Carroll as Lucy, Donn Cook as Captain Jack Absolute, Fred Eric as Faulkland, Gerald Rogers as Fag, George Tawde as David and Herbert Belmore as Thomas.

These players have combined to make a tour of the United States and Canada under the management of George C. Tyler and Hugh Ford, in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the original production of the play. "The Rivals" is one of the three comedies which are the only survivors of the thousands written between the death of Shakespeare and 1890, which in any sense can be considered favorites of the stage today. "The School for Scandal" by Sheridan, is second and "She Stoops to Conquer" by Oliver Goldsmith the third. Sheridan's wit, humor and racy spirit live today because he wrote, not for a day but for all time.

The text of the play used in the present production is approximately as Sheridan wrote it, the restoration by Harrison Grey Fiske, after comparison with various prompt books of celebrated actors being virtually complete. The play is staged by Mr. Fiske.

Undoubtedly this is a combination of the most distinguished dramatic artists of this country, who are presented in a comedy that has charmed the theatrical world for a century and a half. America may not again witness such an illustrious aggregation in many years to come. Mail orders will be given prompt attention.

Maybe the Riffs in Northern Africa are battling so savagely to keep the French from opening a charge account with them.

EASY TO PREDICT TERRORS TO COME

Prophets of Evil Always Have Followers.

For years England has awaited the appearance of "Old Moore's Almanack" and has provided a market for it. It is purely astrological, and the 1926 issue, now on the English market, is said to furnish more than the customary number of thrills. Indeed, one feels that the seer has been too lavish in that he has left little for 1927.

We get this, for instance: "Wonderment and amazement will hold you, as in a spell, when the possibilities of 1926 are laid bare. License, debauchery, lawlessness, self-indulgence, rioting, improvidence, murder, theft and violence will attend the loosing of the unbridled passions of a perverted and godless generation. The sickle is put into reaping and the world generally will become so decimated during the ensuing four years that nothing short of divine intervention will save it from self-destruction." The newspapers will surely be kept busy.

Offhand, one might say that Old Moore had driven himself into a blind alley and that the close of the year to come would find him discredited, but this is unlikely. We may think for a moment of astrologers of the past, to say nothing of minor prophets who term themselves experts. Only a little less than 100 years ago learned men asserted that no railroad train could exceed a speed of 40 miles an hour because of the resistance of the atmosphere. Steamships could never cross the Atlantic because they could not be made large enough to carry enough save their own machinery and fuel. Of course, nothing heavier than air could contrive to make headway in the air.

Even before the World war began experts said that no war could continue for more than 60 days, because of the expense, which was another predicament in which supposedly intelligent forecasters erred, but they are still in good standing, so the tribe of astrologers have no occasion for anxiety. Certainly the assembler of woes who furnishes "Old Moore's Almanack" to a waiting world is safe, for some of the things he predicts in such a lavish manner must be realized.

If they were not, it would make little difference, for since the world began or, to be more exact, since man became curious as to his future, soothsayers have been well patronized just as they are today. That they err frequently or even generally has no effect upon their popularity and astrologers and mediums find an increasing demand for their services.—Hartford Courant.

"The Store That Treats You Right."

The Extravagance of Cheapness!

If one has money to waste on clothing, it may be all right to buy some of the so called "cheap" goods that are so freely advertised.

But comparatively few people can afford this form of extravagance. The man who is careful of his expenditures is not wasting money on poorly made ill-fitting clothes whose only attraction is a low first cost.

However, the shrewd and discerning buyers have contributed to our steady growth. The season's Values. Quality and dependability.

CHURCH COUNCIL IS FOR CENSORSHIP

CINCINNATI MAN ELECTED HEAD OF ORGANIZATION

Gambling In Franklin County Hit In Report of Law Enforcement Committee--Indecent Magazines were Also Given Attention--Women Are Placed On Equal Basis With Men In Amendment Adopted.

Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, was elected president of the Ohio Council of Churches at the closing session of that organization's annual meeting, Tuesday, at the Seneca hotel, Columbus. He was first vice president of the council.

Other officers selected were Dr. W. H. McMaster, president of Mt. Union college, Alliance, first vice president; Gardner Lattimer, second vice president and King Thompson, treasurer.

Members elected to fill vacancies on the executive committee were: Lieutenant Governor Charles H. Lewis, of Harpster; Mrs. Myra B. Scarlett, of Columbus; David W. Teachout of Cleveland and H. S. Firestone, Akron.

Recommendation of the motion picture committee that churches keep in closer contact with moving pictures exhibited, thru a subcommittee of Columbus men who would consult with the state censor board and view some films, was adopted. "This volunteer committee," said the report, "may well be considered a temporary expedient to be supplemented at some future time by a motion picture secretary, employed on either a full or part time basis as a member of the council's staff."

Further extension of county council work to take up overchurched and other local problems was advocated by the county organization committee in its report. Increased localization of the councils' work thruout the state was seen by many of the delegates as marking a turning point in the state organization's work, which has been largely confined to the laying down of principles and formulation of a program.

Gambling in Franklin county was hit in the report of the law enforcement committee, which recommended that "churches should be ready to act decisively at the proper time." Indecent magazines, enforcement of prohibition and enforcement of Sunday observance were also covered in this committee's report.

A plea for elimination of overchurched was made by Dr. C. L. Zorbaugh, president of the Presbyterian synod of Ohio, at the council's annual dinner at Central Methodist Episcopal church, Monday evening. Dr. F. I. Johnson, of Ohio Wesleyan university declared that natives of foreign countries are losing faith in the work of missionaries due to practices of business concerns operating from Christian countries. Greater cooperation among Protestant laymen was urged by Professor Clarence D. Laylin of Ohio State university. Gardner Lattimer quoted figures indicating that costs of welfare work were less than one-fourth of the national expenditures for tobacco, cosmetics, candy and chewing gum.

Women were placed on an equal basis with men in the council with the passage of a constitutional amendment, Monday, providing for one woman delegate in addition to one layman and clergyman from each county, and with the decision, Tuesday, to give women places on the committees, together with men.

Delegates to the department's meeting at the Seneca hotel, beginning Tuesday afternoon and continuing thru Wednesday, were selected this year from among representative church women of the state, including executives of city councils of churches. About 75 women are expected to attend the meetings, over which Mrs.

Dan F. Bradley of Cleveland, will preside.

Four Columbus women took part in the program. Mrs. W. H. Alexander spoke on public moral improvement and Miss Cecelia E. Slawik, secretary of the department, discussed overchurched and underchurched. Judge Florence Allen of the Ohio supreme court delivered an address at the women's department's dinner at Central M. E. church at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening. Mrs. Maclyar, Hamilton Lichliter conducted devotionals.

Other speakers scheduled for the women's meeting and their topics include: Mrs. McD. Howsare, Dayton, evangelism; Mrs. J. P. White, Cedarville, mission study books; Miss Blanche Carrier, Dayton, weekday religious education; Mrs. John Ferguson, New York, president of the Council of Women for Home Missions.

SENATORS AND PIRATES TIED IN BASEBALL

Pittsburgh Earns Way Back
Into Running by Splendid Pitching and Plays.

For the fourth time in the history of the baseball classic, the world series goes the limit of seven games. The Pittsburgh Pirates with Ray Kremer pitching, Tuesday vanquished Washington, 3 to 2, to even the count at three games each. Tuesday's was the most thrilling contest of the six.

It was a great game that Kremer, the stalwart right hander hurled that afternoon. Holding the American league champions to six hits, he blanked them after the second inning, despite the fact that the Nat batters were potential threats.

To whitewash Washington those last seven innings, Kremer had to use all his cunning and the last ounce of his mechanical skill. It is no swivel chair job to hold a powerful attacking team such as Washington in check, but Kremer, aided by the stone wall defense by his infielders, repulsed onslaught after onslaught, displaying his stamina right to the finish retiring Joe Judge and Ossie Bluege after Joe Harris had doubled with one out in the ninth.

Pittsburgh had another hero Tuesday in little Eddie Moore, its short and stocky second sacker. Just three years ago Eddie began his professional baseball career with St. Petersburg. A better outfielder than infielder, he broke into this series as the keystone guardian of the Pirates because Johnny Rawlings broke a leg just prior to the series.

Until Tuesday, Eddie had been almost a total loss as far as execution with the bat was concerned. But the youngster, only 21 years of age, asserted himself scoring Pittsburgh's first run in the third inning and smiting one of Alex Ferguson's offerings in the fifth for a home run that spelled victory as it cleared the temporary fence in front of the score board in left field.

VISITS OLD HOME.

Charles Souder, of Ft. Wayne, Indiana, was in the city Tuesday. This was his first visit here in thirty years. He was a former bus and hack driver. Mr. Souder is now employed as a stationary engineer by the Eckert Packing company at Ft. Wayne.

Columbus, O., Oct. 13 (UP).—The supreme court today sustained the motion to dismiss the petition in error of Earl Myers, Chillicothe, against the State of Ohio and the petition was dismissed.

Myers had been convicted of violating the Sunday closing law and had appealed his case, the higher court upholding the decision of the lower. He then filed a petition in error suit, followed by a motion to dismiss it.

Cleveland.—Postal inspectors may be called to investigate ghouls who have stripped souvenirs from the plane in which Charles H. Ames fell to his death at Bellefonte, Pennsylvania, 11 days ago, Howard B. Shaver assistant superintendent of the eastern air mail division announced here Tuesday.

"Even the name plate on the plane promised to Ames' parents in California was stolen" Shaver declared. "Unless the vandals return the property we will have postal inspectors investigate."

Cincinnati.—Suit of Attorney Elmer U. Grischy for $50,000 fee from Mrs. Helen Power Canter, St. Paul, opened Tuesday before a jury in common pleas court. Grischy claims fees in Mrs. Canter's recent suit to establish her status as common law wife of Emery K. Nowell, oil dealer, who died January 25, 1920. Mrs. Canter contends Grischy and his brother Oscar, forced her into the contract.

Cleveland.—F. S. Baston, manager of a restaurant here, is a psychologist. Baston hires only red hair waitresses. When asked why, he declared auburn haired damsels stimulate appetites, thereby increasing his profits.

Springfield.—The Ohio Welfare conference swung into its second day's session here Wednesday. The 1500 delegates heard John H. Clarke, former associate justice of the United States supreme court, plead for America to enter the world court. Clarke said Roosevelt and Taft had urged nations to form a world court and that President Harding and Coolidge both approved and urged America to take such a step.

France seems to have thought of every means of obtaining peace in Morocco except going home.

CHANGES IN THE CABINET OF PRESIDENT

Washington, Oct. 13, (UP).—One by one the members of the original Harding cabinet which President Coolidge inherited when he became president are passing out of the national picture.

Only three now remain, with the withdrawal of Secretary of War Weeks today. They are Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

The others were Secretary of State Hughes, Postmaster-General Will Hays, Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, Attorney-General Daugherty, Secretary of the Navy Denby and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who died last fall.

PUMPKIN SHOW ARRANGEMENTS ASSUME SHAPE

Parades and Amusements
Will be Features--Displays
Bigger Than Ever.

At the joint meeting of the Pumpkin Show directors, and the members of the chamber of commerce held Tuesday evening, the reports of the directors of the Pumpkin show, showed that they were up and doing and everything is in apple pie order and the big show will be put on in time for the crowds that are expected here next week.

Aside from the displays, which will be unusual this year, there will be plenty of other free amusement for the visitors. Hoskins & Everett will put on balloon ascensions and parachute leaps twice daily. This will take place at the corner of Court and High streets. The high dive of seventy-five feet is another feature, which will take place twice daily at the court house.

The famous Brocks in their perilous horizontal bar acts, will be a feature of the show that will be put on twice daily at the corner of Main and Scioto streets.

The Flying La Pearls in their hair raising stunts on the trapeze twenty-five feet in the air, will be worth seeing. This attraction will be at the corner of Main and Pickaway.

The exhibit of live stock will be a revelation. The chairman of this section, John D. Hummel, has more entries than space, but he is providing extra space for all comers. This and the hog section goes to East High street.

Fred Nicholas, who is an authority on fancy work—says the room in the Crist block on North Court street, has been secured for the art department thru the kindness of the owner, W. E. Crist.

L. T. Shaner, who has charge of the chickens, reports that his section is coming along fine and the crowing will begin on time.

Earl W. Lutz, chairman of the baby show, is being overwhelmed by entries.

The Industrial parade will take place Thursday afternoon and Saturday morning.

Friday evening the Comic and Character parade will be put on.

Saturday afternoon will be given over to the family pet parade. This is a new feature and it is believed will be a big drawing card as a number of prizes will be awarded. The Yellow-bud band will furnish music for the opening night, Wednesday evening and the Adelphi band will furnish the music for the balance of the week.

CHICKEN THIEVES CAUGHT.

The poultry farm of W. A. Crites, just over the county line in Fairfield county, was visited by thieves Monday night and 100 White Wyandotte pullets were taken. The matter was reported to Sheriff Young, who with his deputies visited the place. Peculiar looking tracks of an automobile were traced to this city and led up to the home of Joe See, who, together with his son, Ben See, were placed under arrest. None of the chickens were found. The prisoners were turned over to the Fairfield county authorities Tuesday.

Bryan's Widow Has an Electric Horse on Hands

Miami, Fla.—A mechanical horse, purchased by the late William Jennings Bryan, is being held at the Bryan home here pending decision by Mrs. Bryan as to what disposition to make of the electrical mount.

Mr. Bryan bought the contrivance from a New York firm after a visit to President Coolidge last July, when he was given a demonstration. It was delivered at the Bryan home after his death.

Mrs. Bryan plans to present it to some civic organization, it was said.

AUXILIARY MEETING

Despite the inclemency of the weather, last evening, the regular meeting of the auxiliary to the American Legion was held at the home of Mrs. B. T. Hedges, where those members who attend the meetings regularly, were present. Possibly being a patriotic organization the members reminded themselves of the hardships the soldiers had undergone and decided to brave the elements and do their duty by attending this meeting.

Quite an honor was conferred upon this chapter by the appointment of the president, Mrs. A. A. Parrett, as District chairman of Co-operation of the Central District. This announcement was made at the meeting last evening, and met with hearty congratulations from the members.

The district conference will be held in London on October 27, and Mrs. Parrett was appointed as delegate and Mrs. Amos Wilson as alternate. It is also hoped that some other members of the auxiliary will be able to attend this conference.

Mrs. Anne Betz, as secretary, read a letter from the committee in charge of the improvements made in the Post Room at Memorial Hall accepting the proposal made by the Auxiliary to have the carpet that now covers the floor, made into rugs, and also to paint the upper windows if the paint was furnished.

It was decided to give a series of card parties for the benefit of the Auxiliary, the first of which will be given the week of Oct. 25 at the residence of Mrs. Parrett. The exact date has not been decided upon but a called meeting some time soon will decide this matter and an announcement will be made as soon as possible.

A report from the local chapter of the American Red Cross was heard by the president at a meeting held in their rooms last Wednesday evening and she reported that those of the Auxiliary who wished to do so could knit sweaters as they were greatly in need of them. Several members agreed to make at least one sweater.

WHY BOYS LEAVE HOME

The telephone, the phonograph, the automobile and rural free delivery have done more to make farm life attractive than all the innovations of all the earlier centuries. And now the Agricultural Department reports that 550,000 farms in the United States are equipped with radio.

Yet only the incurable optimist will believe that the wireless can check the drift of country youth toward the city. The next census will show that it is still going on, as it has gone on before the census was dreamed of. The most promising panacea for what is actually a disease menacing the very life of civilization is the garden city idea, popularly identified with the plans of Henry Ford. It promises more than the most wonderful inventions because it offers to the farmer the one thing which most men and women crave most—opportunity for human contacts.—Boston Post.

Architectural Gem in Davenport

This house, which was the most artistic in any phase of architecture in America, has just been dedicated in Davenport, Iowa. It was presented to the city by W. D. Peterson as a memorial to his daughter Wilma, a talented musician, who died recently. The pavilion, which cost $50,000, is built of Indiana limestone and polychrome terra cotta in Spanish renaissance style.

Chicago to Have Big "Acropolis"

Engineer's drawing of the proposed Acropolis building for Chicago. The structure will be 39 stories, bounded by Michigan boulevard, Roosevelt road, Eleventh street and Wabash avenue, occupying a square block. The project will cost $40,000,000. Work is expected to start next spring. The first 21 stories will be devoted to offices and exhibit rooms. Above that is a hotel.

Famous Rock Not to Be Destroyed

The famous overhanging rock over the Gulp road, Montgomery county, Pa., near Valley Forge. The rock, which George Washington's engineers blasted on their journey to Valley Forge, has been in danger of being demolished by dynamite because of the fact that a certain reckless speeder had the top of his car torn off by it. Aubrey Addison, a banker, bought the property and turned it over to the Valley Forge Historical society to be preserved.

Successful Jubilee

Total attendance at Calgary's big stampede and jubilee, which closed recently, reached more than 150,000. —WE SAVE YOU MONEY—

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

OLD BOOKS HAVE NOT LOST CHARM

Although attics are quite passe in these days of space conservation, and such antiques as old sofas are only found in second-hand stores, the literature that flourished in the same period, especially that of interest to children, hasn't followed the same path of oblivion, says the Wisconsin Library Bulletin.

When dad and mother were boy and girl, and even when older brother and sister were young, several apples, a copy of "Tom Sawyer" or "Little Women," the old sofa in the attic and the rain pattering on the roof were all that was necessary for a pleasant afternoon. Or in summer, when dandelions needed to be picked, or the dishes washed, the loft in the barn, with "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" or "Nelly's Silver Mine," was a mighty attractive place. Youngsters haven't changed much today, for the books that were dear to the old folks in their childhood are just as much read now.

Central Europe Sorry It Imported Muskrats

Recently hunters shot a muskrat near Salzburg, Austria. Other muskrats have been seen near Vienna. Before 1906 this North American animal was unknown in Europe, but during that year a pair was brought from America and released on an estate near Prague. The progeny of these rats multiplied so fast that they soon spread to the Bohemian lakes and forests in spite of efforts to exterminate them. By 1913 they were all along the Moldau and along the Eger river in Bavaria. In 1914 they reached lower and upper Austria to the south and Saxony to the north. Soon they crossed the Danube but seem to have been stopped by the Austrian Alps. When the first muskrats were brought to Bohemia it was thought that they would furnish fur, but the climate of Europe does not seem to develop a suitable growth. Central Europe suffers the damage caused by the rodents without the compensation of being able to use the skins.

How It May Have Happened

"Halt, there! Dog-blast you, halt!" yelled Constable Sam T. "I didn't notice it, and—" returned the offending motorist. "Didn't notice it?" "No, I've got hay fever, and must have passed along Main street while I was sneezing."—Kansas City Star.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Boggs entertained their dinner club Tuesday evening.

Mrs. H. P. Folsom entertained at the Maramor, Columbus, Tuesday in honor of Mrs. Thomas Cooper, of San Francisco, the guest of Miss Sadie Brunner. Covers were laid for the honoree and Miss Sadie Brunner, Miss Grace Moodie and the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Chadwick celebrated their forty-second wedding anniversary quietly at their home, corner Watt and Pickaway street. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Manley and children; William, Louis, and Lucy Alene, of Akron, who came down to assist in the celebration.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Harble, of Darbyville were tendered a very pleasant surprise at their home last Friday evening by several members of his congregation. It was planned by Mrs. G. W. Miller, Mrs. F. E. Ginder and Mrs. Harry Hott and daughter, Jennie. As the minister is a very busy and active man, it kept Mrs. Miller very busy herself keeping track of him to ascertain just where he would be found, but he finally returned home, and at about 5:30 was very much surprised to see quite a number of callers about to enter. Mrs. John Downs happened to know of his fondness for angel food cake and baked one of her famous ones especially for the occasion. They also received quite a nice donation of other things. A lovely supper was also served by the ladies and a very social, pleasant evening was enjoyed with the minister and his estimable wife. The following guests were present; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Beatty, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hill and daughter, Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl E. Smith, Mrs. F. E. Ginder, Violet and Howard, Miss Sarah White, Mrs. Harry Hott and daughters, Jennie, Elizabeth, Doris and Bernice and little son, Harry Ed., Mrs. John Downs and Lois Beatty.

The members of Car N, of the Blue Train that left Columbus in July for a trip to the northwest and California, held a reunion at the beautiful country home of Mrs. J. C. Peters and son, Joseph, eight miles northeast of Circleville, on Sunday. Before separating, after having the delightful trip, Mrs. Peters invited the members of this car to meet at her home in October for a dinner and reunion. Sunday, October 11, was finally designated and the following persons were there to enjoy a most delightful time: Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Craig and Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Crawford, of Massillon; Mr. and Mrs. Otto Ackerman, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Vorhes and daughters, Clara and Alma, Miss Ruth Hood, Mrs. Converse and Ed Dozier, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Colwell and Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Rife, of Circleville; Miss Mary E. Babb, of Wilmington; Dr. and Mrs. D. H. Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lewis Edward Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Cadwallader, of Washington. C. H. The day was delightfully spent at the beautiful Peters home. They will meet next year at Washington C. H.—Record Republican.

First Graduate Nurse

Modern nursing's span is so short that America's first woman graduate nurse still lives. She is Linda Richards of Roxbury, Mass., now over eighty years old. According to Miss Anna C. Maxwell, one of her pupils and perhaps the dean of New York nurses, Linda Richards was a woman of thorough education, great strength of character and wonderful perseverance. She was tall, dark, stately and forceful. Her personality was impressive and she had a great vision of what nursing might be. It was she who set out to fix its standards in a foundation of intelligence, education and dignity. Her school of nurses was at the Boston City hospital.

Greenland Hygiene

Tuberculosis is reported to be "making serious ravages among the natives of Greenland, where the knowledge of the principles of hygiene is primitive," says the United States Department of Labor. The Danish ministry of the interior and Danish health service are assisting the local government in the installation of a 20-bed hospital for tuberculous children. Measures for the protection of orphans in Greenland are also being undertaken.

Improvements in the railroads and motor highways of Siam are expected to bring great prosperity by getting to the markets the products of fields, mines and forests that heretofore have been inaccessible.

Pump Gives Gasoline; Garage Finds Out Why

Robinson, Ind.—Citizens of this city thought they had struck a real bonanza here when a visitor to the town pump discovered that the erstwhile reliable well was producing no water, but gasoline.

Excitement reigned when the discovery became known and several autoists filled their tanks free of charge. They found the motor fuel as good as that obtained at a filling station. Later a nearby garage, which thought it had plenty of gasoline on hand, found its storage tank empty. The tank had sprung a leak and 500 gallons of gasoline had followed a crevice in the earth to the town well.

Mummified Woman Is Puzzle to Italians

Naples.—A striking example of the mummification of a human body by natural processes has been discovered at Vatolla, in the province of Salerno, with the exhumation of the body of a local resident, Rosa Scarpa, who died in 1912. The body was found to be in a perfect state of preservation; even her clothing were in a sort of petrified condition, but retained their original colors.

Thinking the mummification process might have been due to peculiar chemical qualities of the soil, the authorities ordered the opening of an adjacent grave, but the corpse in the latter grave had completely decomposed. This, therefore, led to the belief among devout natives that a miracle had been wrought.

A Daring Departure in 1921

.. today, the nation's standard for small home heating

"BEAUTIFUL, yes, but will it work?" Many questions, like this one, greeted the Heatrola in 1921. It was so different in appearance and operation from anything known before.

But Heatrola "worked!" From the day of the first installation, its success was assured. For Heatrola, handsome as a fine mahogany cabinet, and as easy to keep clean, does the work of a basement furnace! It keeps every room in the house, upstairs and down, cozy and snug in coldest weather. And requires no more fuel than any stove requires.

Tens of thousands of homes enjoyed Heatrola's furnace comfort last Winter—many thousands more will own Heatrolas before snow flies. Right here in this community, the homes of many of your neighbors are kept warm by this modern heating method. Let us show you these Heatrolas, and tell you how easily you can own one, too. THE WIFE THAT FAILED
There is in Paris a disappointed husband. What distinguishes him from others is that he does not mind who knows it. He has gone to the courts to extract from his parents-in-law compensation for "having deceived him as to the qualities of his wife." Such things, of course, have been. The leading case, is that of Laban and Jacob, who, poor man, was so far deceived as the qualities of his bride that he was married to the elder sister instead of the younger.

The Victorian poet assures us that this is the common lot of man: "With Rachel we lie down at evening, behold in the morning 'tis Leah," or, as the vernacular has it, "no man marries the woman he wants." But in America it is generally thought that this is one of the inevitable risks of life.

The resources of American law have seldom been invoked on the direct issue that a wife is not what she was expected to be. It would seem that the French system contains no special provisions for such cases, for the suit is described as without precedent, and the husband appears to rely upon general principles, such as a breach of warranty and false pretenses by the parents, rather than any particular article of the code.

He pleads that before his marriage his wife was no better than she should have been, that her parents not merely knew this, but connived at it, encouraged it, and never said a word to him about it. This is a state of things often met in old plays and novels, but it may be said that it goes better as a tragedy than as a case for damage. Not unknown to dramatists either, is the theme of a wife falsely accused of misconduct before the wedding day. It would clearly be wrong to offer any opinion as to which of these classes includes the lady in Paris.

But the husband has other grounds of complaint. "Contrary to the information given to him before marriage," he pleads, "the family into which he married contains some most undesirable characters." What family does not? But what would the man have? Will he require that a wife shall bring him relations-in-law whom we will love, like, or even approve? It is preposterous. Even in marriage a man has no right to expect miracles. But this persistent fellow argues that he had known in his bachelorhood what he knows now he would never have married the girl, and if he had not married her he would have saved a lot of money. This money, therefore, he requires from her parents. It is a safe bet that he will not get it. But he is an interesting man. He ought not to be in the courts. He ought to be in a museum.

CARD OF THANKS.
We wish to thank all our relatives and friends for the kindness and sympathy extended us at the death of our dear wife and mother, also for the beautiful floral tributes. We thank Rev. Johnson for his consoling words and the Albaugh Co., for their services.
W. M. Barnes And Family.

IN MEMORIAM
Editor Union-Herald:—Waneta Faith, daughter of Grant and Bertha Shade, was born near Darbyville, April 5, 1906, and departed from this life October 10, 1925, aged 19 years, six months and five days.
She leaves to mourn father, mother four sisters and two brothers and a host of other relatives and friends. She was converted and joined the M. E. church at Darbyville in February, 1919, under the pastorate of Rev. Warren Davis. In July she was taken sick and for fourteen weeks she had suffered untold agony until relieved by the grim messenger of death.
Waneta was a kind and loving daughter, ever thoughtful and ready to relieve mother in the household duties, and was loyal to her friends. She was a lover of beautiful flowers and was always pleased to receive them from her friends during her illness.
Waneta is gone, left us in the springtime of her youth, never to return; but what a blessed thought for us that sometime we can meet her in another home where pain and suffering are unknown.
Card of Thanks.
We wish to express our sincere gratitude and thanks to the kind neighbors and friends who in any way assisted us during the sickness and death of our loved one. Also to Rev. Harble for his consoling words, the choir for their beautiful songs rendered, to C. E. Hill, the undertaker, for his courteous ways and efficient manner in which he conducted the funeral and to Dr. E. A. Secoy and Dr. F. E. Ginder for medical attention and treatment.
Mr. and Mrs. Grant Shade And Family.

FLOCK RECORDS WILL BE KEPT FOR ONE YEAR

Forty Women Have Signed Agreements—Accounts of Egg Production.

Forty Pickaway county farm women have signed agreements to keep Poultry Demonstration flock records for the fiscal year beginning November 1, 1925, and ending November 1, 1926.

These records will contain detailed accounts of egg production, receipts from all sources of the poultry work, and all expenditures for feed, equipment etc.

A complete inventory at the beginning and end of the year will be taken. Record blanks are furnished in triplicate for monthly reports to the county agent. Each woman cooperating by keeping these records will be visited by the poultry specialist from the university at least once during the year. A monthly summary for the past month will be sent to each cooperator, the first of each month. This will give the standing in egg production of all cooperators but only the names of the highest ten will be printed.

Three county meetings will be held. The demonstrators will meet Friday afternoon, October 16, at the Farm Bureau office to get the proper information for starting the work.

Raymond E. Gray, poultry specialist, Ohio, State university will be the speaker of the afternoon. Mr. Gray will talk on the fall management of the laying flock and demonstration flock record keeping.

Dare Devils Risking Lives Daily Often Claimed In Minor Mishaps

Do some persons lead charmed lives, risking their necks at every turn yet going unscathed? Are others, no matter how uneventful their lives, doomed to meet one sudden experience that will abruptly end time for them? It would seem so from a casual study of death records and the histories of cases.

A human fly, who could never procure insurance because he made his living scaling skyscrapers before moving crowds, dies in his bed.

A middle-aged farmer, pursuing the most peaceful occupation in the world, is shot to death while being shaved in the village barber shop.

Fast devil drivers of high-powered racing cars beat death in hairbreadth escapes time after time.

Yet a conservative doctor, whose time is given mostly to office practice, tripping on a rug, falls against a high voltage wire of his X-ray apparatus and is instantly killed.

These are but a few of the accidents that cost the Prudential Insurance Company more than a million dollars last year. Persons in the so-called hazardous occupations such as aviators, steeple jacks, miners, workers in plants making explosives and some others cannot procure insurance. In the case of other occupations the clause providing double indemnity in case of accidental death can not be included.

Yet last year accidental death benefits paid by the Prudential amounted to $554,648. This sum was in addition to the face values of the policies so that the total amount paid by the company on accidental deaths of ordinary policyholders reached $1,109,256. Approximately fifty per cent of all accidental deaths were between the ages of twenty and forty years of age, rendering them untimely as well as violent.

Short-Cuts in Cake-Baking

THERE are many ways in which the busy housewife can simplify and minimize the burdens of her day. All household tasks are important, and most of them necessary, but numerous valuable aids are at the housewife's beck and call, if she will but avail herself of them.

In cooking, for instance, so much time is necessarily consumed in the preparation of the substantial parts of a meal, that there is little time or strength left for the supplementary parts, such as salads and desserts. Yet these need not be a burden.

Cake-baking, for example, used to be a rather burdensome undertaking and often to the weary housewife seemed to be the "one straw" too much after a busy day of cleaning, or ironing, or cooking the substantial dishes of the three meals. But, now that so many of the things which go into the making of a cake may be had in prepared form, ready to use at a moment's notice, no one minds beating up a cake in mid-afternoon, to be served as dessert for dinner, or for five o'clock tea when unexpected guests drop in.

If the latter happens to be short of milk, there is no need to send out for it, if the housewife is one of those wise ones who keeps an adequate and varied stock of prepared foods, including powdered or evaporated milk, on her pantry shelf. Powdered milk is carefully inspected and pasteurized milk which has then been dehydrated (water removed). It requires merely the replacing of the water, to produce milk in its regular and familiar form. When used in cake, it will make the latter much more healthful for children or invalids to eat, because the pasteurization removed all disease-carrying bacteria, and, once the water was removed, bacterial development stopped.

The rule for restoring powdered milk to liquid whole milk is as follows:—1 cup of water to 4 tablespoonsful or 1/4 measuring-cup of the powder.

A good, standard cake may be made by creaming together 1/2 cup butter and 1 cup sugar; adding beaten yolks of 3 eggs; sifting 1 cup flour with 3 teaspoons baking-powder, and stirring these in alternately with 1/2 cup of reliquidified powdered milk. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla, and fold in the egg whites beaten very stiff. Bake in moderate oven, in layer or loaf-cake tin. Or, evaporated milk may be used. This, also, is pure whole milk from which a large part of the water has been removed and which has been processed in such a way as to retain its purity. It needs only to be diluted with an equal part of water to have a milk equal in richness to fluid milk of standard quality.

The powdered milk may be used to make a good chocolate fudge frosting, thus:—1 1/2 cups brown sugar, 2 tablespoons syrup, 1 tablespoon butter, 1/4 cup reliquidified powdered milk, 1 square chocolate. Cook slowly for fifteen minutes, or until it forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water. Cool for ten minutes and beat until creamy.

Whipped cream may be made from evaporated milk and poured over a plain cake. This is done by cooking the milk in a double-boiler for five minutes, stirring constantly; then cool (also stirring), and set on ice until ready for whipping. Canned pineapple may be used in either the filling, or in the cake, itself. Cocoanut, moist or dry, comes ready to mix with boiled icing, or to use in the cake batter itself. A ready-made marshmallow filling also comes in cans.

ELK'S PEAK PUT ON MAP BY BOY SCOUTS

The map of the United States is to have an addition. Elk's peak, near Portland, Ore., is to be the new feature. It has gained official notice through the suggestion and interest of boy scouts of Sellwood, Ore.

Troop 46 visited the peak last year while on an historical hike. The scouts, on their return, started their efforts to have the peak named. The troop brought the landmark to the attention of the National Geographic Board.

The result has been the naming of Elk's peak, which will hereafter appear on all official maps of the country.

"The site, it is declared by old timers, was the habitat of hundreds of elk who roamed through the Willamette valley," stated a news account. "In fact, even after the district became settled, the elk were seen about the slopes of the peak."

Wasn't in the Curriculum

A knowledge of pedagogy does not always beget a knowledge of the finer aspects of horticulture or agriculture. For instance, the teacher in one of the junior high schools of a northern Indiana city had occasion to visit with her father the little garden the parent had planted in the rear of the factory where he was superintendent.

"Daddy, dear," she said in the tone characteristic of girls who have passed the teen age, "do the cabbages grow on top of the ground or underneath the ground?"

Men may be practical creatures, but you seldom hear of one marrying to get a home.

GREELEY'S HANDWRITING AGAIN.

Horace Greeley's illegible handwriting has become a tradition of the country. It is amusingly demonstrated in two letters quoted in the October McClure's magazine.

The first letter is this:
"Tribune Office, New York City:
May 2, 1869.

"Dear Sir: I am overworked and growing old. I shall be sixty next February 3. On the whole, it seems I must decline to lecture henceforth except in this immediate vicinity, if I do at all. I cannot promise to visit Illinois on that errand, certainly not now. Yours truly,
"Horace Greeley."

The reply to this letter was this:
"Sandwich, Ill.,
May 12, 1869.

"Hon. Horace Greeley,
"New York Tribune
"Dear Sir: Your acceptance to lecture before our association next winter came to hand this morning. Your penmanship not being the plainest, it took some time to translate it; but we succeeded and would say, your time, February 3, and the terms, sixty dollars, are entirely satisfactory. As you suggest, we may be able to get you other engagements. Respectfully
M. B. castle."

AMUSEMENTS

A Homespun comedy-romance, cleverly acted, skillfully directed and with the added advantage of a plot that is different, "Old Home Week" Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture, now showing at the Metropolitan theater is about as satisfying and entertaining a photoplay as the current season has produced.

Here is a picture that portrays the sunny side of Main street and does it in such human and humorous fashion that the memory of it will linger long after other photoplays have been forgotten.

Altho the star's performance is the outstanding feature, he is ably supported by an exceptional line-up of experienced players, headed by Lila Lee, who acquit themselves with considerable distinction.

"Old Home Week" boasts the authorship of George Ade, and if there is a writer in America today who knows the average small town and can write about it amusingly, sympathetically and understandingly, it is this famous Hoosier humorist, whose shrewd philosophy and homely quips have won for him an enviable reputation.

In brief, the story deals with the experiences of a small town boy, who returns home after having "made good" in New York. At least the townspeople take it for granted that he has been successful inasmuch as his business cards read "President of the Amalgamated Oil Co.," The citizens hail his arrival with the keenest delight because the town is at that very moment in the midst of an oil boom.

At about the time the local "here" discovers that a couple of crooked promoters are in back of the oil boom the inhabitants learn that their native son is in reality a failure and bankrupt. The resultant developments are full of action and suspense eventually leading up to a surprise climax and a happy ending.

The production as a whole reflects great credit on Tom Geraghty who made the screen adaptation and Victor Heerman who produced it.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

NEOLITHIC MAN HAD NUMEROUS COMFORTS

Had About the Same Plants and Animals That We Have.

When we read over the list of the plants and animals domesticated by Neolithic man, we are astonished to find that there have been very few additions since that time in either of these classes. Down to the discovery of the New World no domesticated animals of importance and few plants had been added in the 6,000 or 8,000 years since the lake villages of Switzerland were constructed. Flax was the commonest known textile and was used in the manufacture of skin garments. Wool was also used; in fact, it was the chief dress material used down through the classic into medieval times. Linen was much later in North and came into use there in relatively recent times, while silk first appeared in Europe during the Roman Empire.

CLARK COUNTY GRAND JURY

Investigating Mysterious Poisoning Case.

Springfield, Oct. 13.—(UP).—The Clark county grand jury met today to investigate the mysterious poisoning of 14 year old Esta Strome, of New Carlisle, whose stepmother, Mrs. Birdie Strome, is held in the county jail pending action of the grand jury.

Threads of evidence spun from the story told by Arthur Keigley, Dayton, O., drug clerk, will weave a charge of murder that may be placed against Mrs. Strome, County Prosecutor McKinney declared.

Keigley will testify that a woman answering Mrs. Strome's description bought a quantity of strychnine shortly before the girl died.

An analysis of Esta's stomach revealed she died of strychnine poisoning. She was in apparently good health 30 minutes before she collapsed.

WEDDING OCCURRED FRIDAY EVENING

A beautiful home wedding was solemnized Friday evening, October 9th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Martin, west of the city, when their daughter, Cecile Edna, was united in marriage to Russell C. Palm, of Circleville.

The attendants were Mr. Russell Martin and Miss Mae Martin, brother and sister of the bride.

Plan Ideal Marriages

Latest of the additions to Berlin's myriad clubs and vereins is the Bachelor club. The members pledge themselves not to marry until they have amassed a capital of 100,000 marks (nominally $23,800) and then to marry none but poor girls. The club members believe that the root of the social unrest is misery and that most marriage that fall are shipwrecked on indigence. Therefore, they believe the ideal marriage demands a comfortably situated husband and a girl he loves.

COMMITTEE SAYS HANDS ARE TIED
The Uniform Rule Blocks Tax Relief.
INTANGIBLES ESCAPE LEVY

Burden on Real Property Can Be Decreased Only by Adoption of the Tax Amendment.
Columbus, O.—Because of the present inflexible constitutional requirement that all classes of property shall be taxed by a uniform rule, viz., at their true value in money and at the same rate, every legislative attempt to force intangible property onto the tax duplicate has proved abortive. Money on deposit in financial institutions is one of the several kinds of intangible property and the most easily disclosed. If all the money on deposit in Ohio were taxed so that it would bear a fair share of the burden, greater equity in our tax system would be attained and considerable increase in revenue should result. A tax which drives money out of the State or into concealment, because the rate is regarded as confiscatory, is unenforceable and futile.

Part of the work of the Joint Legislative Committee on Economy and Taxation has been to ascertain the amount of money on deposit and how much of it has been taxed, under the uniform rule. The figures collected by the committee show that in the year 1924, while there were more than three and a half billion of dollars on deposit, less than a quarter of billion was taxed. Read the figures showing money on deposit and money actually returned for taxation according to counties:

It has been estimated that all intangible property in Ohio escaping taxation amounts to more than Ten Billions of Dollars. The grand total of all property returned for taxation in 1924, including land and improvements and all tangible and intangible personal property was about Twelve Billion, Two Hundred and Fifty Million Dollars. If the intangible property now escaping taxation under the present uniform rule were taxed at a rate proportionately fair to its earning power, it would seem reasonable to believe that there could be a lightening of the tax load now borne by real and personal property.

In the submission of the proposed tax amendment to the Constitution and the creation of this joint committee, the Eighty-sixth General Assembly has responded to definite sentiment in the State. No General Assembly can legislate substantial improvements in our tax system and this joint committee cannot effectively complete its work, unless the people adopt the tax amendments at the election November 3.

Every citizen has a self-interest in the question of taxation, whether he be owner or renter.

Nation Honors Dead
Honor to the dead in the form of monuments of carved stone is well carried out in the United States. Last year more than 400,000 tons of stone were used in building monuments to the dead and for gravestones. Some of the monuments represented work by accomplished sculptors, while many were the work of ordinary stone cutters.

A Mistake in Identity
In the town where I was reared there was a combination barroom and luncheon for colored only, known as the Bleeding Heart saloon. It stood at the foot of a street near the head of the wharf and was a favorite resort for river darters. Among its regular patrons was a brave individual, six feet four inches long and correspondingly broad, who answered to the pet name of Red Hoss. Red Hoss posed as a bad man. He let on, as the phrase runs, that he was the undertaker's best friend. To be sure there was no record that he actually had ever destroyed anyone, but he frequently promised to do so, and was rated as dangerous by the resident colored populace.

One night the Cincinnati and New Orleans packet on her way south landed at our town. Among her deck passengers was a small yellow man, a professional prize fighter from up North. On the journey down the river he had introduced his own private set of educated ivorys into the crap game among the roustabouts, with the result that he now had all their money in his possession.
Dapper, trim and slim, he climbed the wharf and entered the Bleeding Heart and called for a jolt of sloe gin. He was in the act of paying for the drink with the top film of a delectably fat roll of green bills when the swinging doors were thrust violently asunder and in stalked Red Hoss, slightly intoxicated and therefore doubly belligerent. His lowering, bloodshot eye swept the interior, then focused with a greedy stare upon what the slender stranger held in his hand.

Lurching slightly, he swaggered up to the bar and gripped a huge soiled paw on the lapel of the little yellow man's coat.

"Say lissun, pusson," he stated. "You better turn dat bundle of sof' money over to me, an' 'en I'll give you back wut part of it I thinks you should have fur yose'f."

"Who is you, may I ast?" inquired the visiting nobleman in gentle accents.

"You better ast!" growled Red Hoss. "Findin' out who I is meks yo' chances fur livin' longer al' de brighter ef you aims to stay round dese parts. You asts me who I is, huh? Well, I se goin' tell you. I se de new town bully, tha's who! Yas, suh; I se de official bully of dis town an' w'en a strange nigger hits yere he mos' gin'elly hands me over wut spare change he's got an' tha's his life ins'ohence. So—"

He did not finish the sentence. Stupefaction and rage tied his tongue temporarily as the audacious stripping with a jaunty gesture brushed free of the detaining clutch and turned to the barkeeper, saying pleasantly:

"Mist' Barkeeper, 'at shorely wuz very tasty gin. I thinks I'll tek me one mo' slug outen de same bottle, ef you please."

Red Hoss recovered his faculties. With a berserker bellow he swung with a huge fist for the little man's jaw. The jaw was not there when the fist whizzed past. The pugilist ducked, and came up expertly with a short arm jab which landed exactly on the point of Red Hoss' chin. There was a jar as a large inert body struck the floor.

Three minutes later Red Hoss slowly and dizzily roused himself. Some Good Samaritan had restored him to consciousness by sluicing a bucket of water over him. Dripping and dazed, he sat up, holding his aching head on with both hands. The little man stood at the bar blowing softly upon the knuckles of his right hand and conversing with the barkeeper upon the topics of the day.

"Mister," quavered Red Hoss, "who is you?"

"Me?" said the stranger. "Oh, I is merely the pusson you thought you wuz w'en you come in yere."

A Service to the Whole Land

In the early summer of 1918 three of us made a long trip by automobile to pay a visit to a colored regiment at the front in France. The results more than repaid us for the time and trouble. One of the main compensations was First Class Private Cooksey, who, because he had been an elevator attendant in a Harlem apartment house, gave his occupation in his enlistment blank as "indoor chauffeur." It was to First Class Private Cooksey that the colonel of the regiment, seeing the expression on the others' faces when a mine-thrower from a German mortar fell near by on the day the command moved up to the front, and made a hole in the earth deep enough and wide enough and long enough to hide the average smoke house in—it was I repeat, to First Class Private Cooksey that the colonel put this question:

"Cooksey, if one of those things drops right here alongside of us and goes off, are you going to stay by me?"

"Kurnel," stated Cooksey with sincerity, "I ain't aimin' to tell you no lie. Ef one of them things busts close to me, I'll jest natchelly be obliged to go away from here. But please, suh, don't you set me down as no deserter. Jest put it in de book as 'Absent without leave,' 'cause I'll be back jest ez soon ez I kin git my brakes to work."

"But what if the enemy suddenly appears in force without any preliminary bombardment?" pressed the colonel. "What do you think you and the rest of the boys will do then?"

"Kurnel," said Cooksey, earnestly, "we may not stick by you, but we'll shore render one service, anyway; we'll spread the news all over France 'at th' Germans is comin'!"

PREFERS PRISON
In United States To Freedom In Mexico.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—John W. Worthington, "Wolf of La Salle Street," who returned to Chicago from Mexico, "to make peace with my God and my government, to make my will, and to die," was taken to the Atlanta Penitentiary Saturday expecting to live at least five years.

"The Wolf," who had dodged the penitentiary through subterfuge for two years—made a last desperate stand for continued freedom here and when that failed, started for prison with a resignation not unmixed with happiness.

"Wtll, I'm glad to be on my way," he said after regaling reporters with his hardships while a fugitive in Mexico. "The doctor down in Mexico said I might live five years if I returned to the United States. I'll have good care in prison and any way, I'd rather be in prison in the United States than free in Mexico."

LOANS up to $500

If you borrow a dish-pan from your neighbor, and have to pay it back by loaning him your car the price comes high. Yet some people expect the redemption of a favor in just about that proportion. An accommodation loan from a friend or relative usually costs plenty in one form or another and in addition to the cost, if the incident should become the subject of family or neighborhood discussion, it is embarrassing, to say the least. An element of personal accommodation enters into every City Loan transaction, but fundamentally it is a business proposition. The borrower knows the full cost before he starts, also that a credit once established can be used time and again as desired.

Heat with Distinction

At last it is proved that a home heater can be good looking—ornamental, if you will—as well as a practical heat-producing utility.

The Mueller Furnacette marks the greatest advance in home heating equipment since the invention of the heating stove. It is the joint creation of master furniture designers and skilled heating engineers. There is distinction in every line of its well-balanced, walnut-grained, vitreous enamel cabinet.

And as for heat—never was there an above-floor heater of any kind that could compare with the Furnacette in heating efficiency! It heats the whole house by continuously re-circulating warm, moist air thru all the rooms. It provides more comfortable, more uniform heat than two or three stoves combined, yet uses no more fuel than an ordinary heating stove.

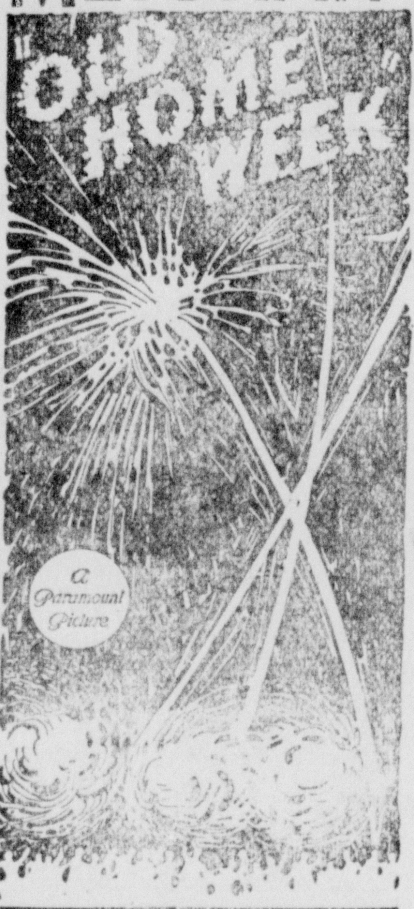

Sold on convenient monthly payments.

HARTMAN THEATER.
x x x x x x x x

"The Rivals," the immortal comedy by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, with an all star cast, comes to the Hartman theater, Columbus, for a return engagement of three days beginning on Thursday, October 15, with a matinee on Saturday.

The cast includes Mrs. Fiske as Mrs. Malaprop, Chauncey Olcott as Sir Lucius O'Trigger, Thomas A. Wise as Sir Anthony Absolute, James T. Powers as Bob Acres, Lotus Robb as Lydia Languish, Jean Ford as Julia Marie Carroll as Lucy, Donn Cook as Captain Jack Absolute, Fred Eric as Faulkland, Gerald Rogers as Fag, George Tawde as David and Herbert Belmore as Thomas.

These players have combined to make a tour of the United States and Canada under the management of George C. Tyler and Hugh Ford, in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the original production of the play. "The Rivals" is one of the three comedies which are the only survivors of the thousands written between the death of Shakespeare and 1890, which in any sense can be considered favorites of the stage today. "The School for Scandal" by Sheridan, is second and "She Stoops to Conquer" by Oliver Goldsmith the third. Sheridan's wit, humor and racy spirit live today because he wrote, not for a day but for all time.

The text of the play used in the present production is approximately as Sheridan wrote it, the restoration by Harrison Grey Fiske, after comparison with various prompt books of celebrated actors being virtually complete. The play is staged by Mr. Fiske.

Undoubtedly this is a combination of the most distinguished dramatic artists of this country, who are presented in a comedy that has charmed the theatrical world for a century and a half. America may not again witness such an illustrious aggregation in many years to come. Mail orders will be given prompt attention.

EASY TO PREDICT TERRORS TO COME

Prophets of Evil Always Have Followers.

For years England has awaited the appearance of "Old Moore's Almanack" and has provided a market for it. It is purely astrological, and the 1926 issue, now on the English market, is said to furnish more than the customary number of thrills. Indeed, one feels that the seer has been too lavish in that he has left little for 1927.

We get this, for instance: "Wonderment and amazement will hold you, as in a spell, when the possibilities of 1926 are laid bare. License, debauchery, lawlessness, self-indulgence, rioting, improvidence, murder, theft and violence will attend the loosing of the unbridled passions of a perverted and godless generation. The sickle is put into reaping and the world generally will become so decimated during the ensuing four years that nothing short of divine intervention will save it from self-destruction." The newspapers will surely be kept busy.

Offhand, one might say that Old Moore had driven himself into a blind alley and that the close of the year to come would find him discredited, but this is unlikely. We may think for a moment of astrologers of the past, to say nothing of minor prophets who term themselves experts. Only a little less than 100 years ago learned men asserted that no railroad train could exceed a speed of 40 miles an hour because of the resistance of the atmosphere. Steamships could never cross the Atlantic because they could not be made large enough to carry enough save their own machinery and fuel. Of course, nothing heavier than air could contrive to make headway in the air.

Even before the World war began experts said that no war could continue for more than 60 days, because of the expense, which was another predicament in which supposedly intelligent forecasters erred, but they are still in good standing, so the tribe of astrologers have no occasion for anxiety. Certainly the assembler of woes who furnishes "Old Moore's Almanack" to a waiting world is safe, for some of the things he predicts in such a lavish manner must be realized.

If they were not, it would make little difference, for since the world began or, to be more exact, since man became curious as to his future, soothsayers have been well patronized just as they are today. That they err frequently or even generally has no effect upon their popularity and astrologers and mediums find an increasing demand for their services.—Hartford Courant.

"The Store That Treats You Right."

The Extravagance of Cheapness!

If one has money to waste on clothing, it may be all right to buy some of the so called "cheap" goods that are so freely advertised.

But comparatively few people can afford this form of extravagance. The man who is careful of his expenditures is not wasting money on poorly made ill-fitting clothes whose only attraction is a low first cost.

However, the shrewd and discerning buyers have contributed to our steady growth. The season's Values. Quality and dependability.
